About Us

Nunyara is an RACGP-accredited health service committed to providing culturally appropriate care, health promotion, and education for the Aboriginal community. We're more than just a health service; we're a community, and we're seeking someone who is motivated and shares our passion for making a positive impact.

About the Role

As a Male Aboriginal Health Practitioner, you will provide a range of health-related functions of a clinical, preventative, rehabilitative or promotional nature under general direction at Nunyara Aboriginal Health Service. You will hold a Certificate IV in Aboriginal and / or Torres Strait Islander Primary Health Care and be AHPRA Registered.

What You'll do:

- Assist in the provision of comprehensive primary health care and education of clients, in conjunction with other members of the health care team
- Assist with the provision of standard medical treatments in accordance with established medical protocols
- Collect and record data which will assist in the diagnosis and management of common medical problems and medical emergencies
- Participate in educating and informing mob about preventative health measures
- Undertake orientation and training programs
- Assess acutely ill patients and direct promptly to appropriate care

You will have the opportunity to work with mob in non-clinical capacity by supporting and or facilitating group work, undertaking small projects, participating in activities and events.

We are looking for a motivated and committed Male Aboriginal Health Practitioner who is passionate about supporting men in managing their health. Beyond holding the required qualifications, we want someone who:

- Is culturally aware and sensitive, with a strong understanding of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander health needs and the barriers to accessing healthcare
- Communicates effectively with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander men, building trust and rapport to support their health journey

Respecting culture;
Acknowledging diversity

- Shows initiative and leadership in engaging the community through preventative health measures, education, and programs aimed at improving outcomes for men
 - Is adaptable and resourceful, able to handle diverse health issues, contribute to the management of medical emergencies when needed, and support broader community-based activities and events
 - Collaborates well with other healthcare professionals, participating as an active member of a multidisciplinary team to provide holistic care

In a nutshell, we are looking for a dedicated individual who not only possesses the necessary clinical skills but also has a deep commitment to improving the health and well-being of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander men.

Having Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people delivering health services to Aboriginal communities improves the health and wellbeing for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people.

The Exemption to the Equal Opportunity Act SA 1984 (the Exemption) enables SA Health and members of the Aboriginal Health Council of SA (AHCSA) to advertise and prefer Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander persons to identified positions under the Exemption, including the specification of a gender occupational requirement (men and/or women).

Nunyara is a member of the Aboriginal Health Council of SA and has identified this position as exempt from the Equal Opportunity Act SA 1984.

Respecting culture;
Acknowledging diversity
