About Us

Nunyara is an RACGP-accredited health service committed to providing culturally appropriate care, health promotion, and education for the Aboriginal community. We're more than just a health service; we're a community, and we're seeking someone who is motivated and shares our passion for making a positive impact.

About the Role

As our Clinic Manager, you will lead a multidisciplinary team to deliver culturally appropriate, comprehensive primary health care to the Whyalla Aboriginal community, focusing on chronic disease, maternal and child health, mental health, and preventative care, while supporting collaboration, high-quality client outcomes, and continuous improvement.

What You'll Do:

- Lead high-quality, culturally safe primary health care and oversee clinical governance.
- Ensure compliance with accreditation, legislation, and safety standards.
- Drive continuous quality improvement and use data to enhance services.
- Supervise, mentor, and support clinical staff and workforce development.
- Coordinate multidisciplinary teams and support GPs to deliver effective care.
- Oversee daily clinic operations and ensure efficient service delivery.
- Contribute to organisational strategy, reporting, and stakeholder engagement.
- Strengthen community connections and lead change and innovation initiatives.

What We're Looking For: A strong and experienced leader in primary health care, ideally with experience in an Aboriginal Community Controlled Health Service. You will have a solid understanding of clinical governance, RACGP accreditation standards, and compliance requirements, along with the ability to lead and support a multidisciplinary team in a culturally safe and respectful way. You will bring experience in continuous quality improvement, data-driven decision making, and service development, supported by excellent communication, organisational, and problem-solving skills, and a genuine commitment to improving health outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.
